Leo Sayer guest for Davson art opening

Recording star Leo Sayer was a guest at the opening of selected works from one of the world's most exciting art collections, The Davson - World Leaders and Enlightenment Collection, at Hunter Valley Gardens.

Sayer, a patron of 48 Hours Towards World spoke of his passion for world peace artist Sharon Davson of her wonderful mission towards this end.

The exhibition, titled Davson Art 1st Preview Event, has the support of many world leaders and will run until January 10.

For more than a decade, Sharon Davson's exceptional art and charity works have been embraced by world leaders from many fields, including; Sir Cliff Richard, Andre Agassi, Neil Diamond, Mario Andretti, Sir Nigel Mansell, Paul Newman, Cathy Freeman and Bon Jovi.

The "preview" exhibition is being held in the Garden Terrace Restaurant at Hunter Valley Gardens before going on tour for four years with a select number of public art galleries and museums in Australia. The artworks are described as quality art for love, enjoyment, enhancement, investment or superannuation desires.

Hunter Valley Gardens General Manager, Will Creedon, said, "We are very excited for Hunter Valley Gardens to be associated with this unique exhibition. I invite all lovers of fine art to take the opportunity to see this incredible talent while the artworks are on exhibition here".

Mayor of Cessnock, Cr. John Clarence, who officially opened the exhibition, said so many people from all walks of life, from many parts of the world have commented, that Sharon Davson's work reflects sincerity, and beauty, and conveys a message of hope and peace for all.

"Her concerns for what is happening in our global culture in regard to environment and social issues have seen her become a leader, showing us the way forward.

"I'm told those who have viewed this exhibition have recognised that love abounds throughout and harmony prevails. The Davson Exhibition is truly at home in this place of peace, in Hunter Valley Gardens.
